Scott Pape : The Barefoot Investor: Five Steps to Financial Freedom in Your 20s and 30s before purchasing it in order to gauge whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised The Barefoot Investor: Five Steps to Financial Freedom in Your 20s and 30s:

Fisher If you've read any investment books, this one fits in with all of them and doesn't really offer anything new. Not a bad book if you are new to the idea of investing and building wealth long-term. It also has sections on other life issues, such as renting vs.

owning. Be warned that the author hails from Australia, so a lot of the content is useful but different from how things are in the US. I give it four stars because it's a decent book and the author writes in a very comfortable style, even though much of the material is pretty basic. 1 of 3 people found the following review helpful. Good read. By MarcKA commonsense approach to building you wealth. Scott explains wealth building in a sensible frank manner that is easy to read and understand. 1 of 1 people found the following review helpful. The Jamie Oliver of Finance By Macleod This guy is the Jamie Oliver of finance, young, cool, funny, good style of writing and not much solid to follow. Here is the book in a nutshell: Save your money as much as you can and then give it to a finance manager, hedge fund, mutual fund or this type of investment. If you are English, you will be able to find a list of all of these funds in which you can investigate. If you are not, well just look on Google and see the thousands of companies and funds, or ask your bank manager what to do with your 100k in the bank and you will feel even more confused than when you read the book!! If you are 15 years old, or have never read a finance book, or have no financial control or idea this book is for you. It does explain the power of interest which is very important. But if you are looking for solid financial advice and direction and if you have money to invest and want to know how to learn to invest for yourself, then this book is a waste of time, except for a few cheap laughs.

The Barefoot Investor is about creating the financial freedom to live your dreams, whatever your age. It shows how getting your financial act together can be downright sexy, allowing you to achieve the things that mean the most to you - regardless of your income. Scott Pape, the Jamie Oliver of finance, writes for the young and hip who want to enjoy life now - not to wait on dead men's shoes. He shows you how to manage your money to do the things you want: whether it's to quit the job you hate to make a career of what you love; buy a cool flat; go backpacking; or build a wealth portfolio for the future. It is packed full of simple tips, tricks, checklists and quizzes that will help you to transform your personal wealth with minimum effort. By following the Barefoot plan you can make your money work for you. There are five simple steps here showing you how to save it, invest it and let it do the hard work for you so you can tread your own path. At last, you can live your dreams and pay for them too.

A good bet for anyone who regards money with healthy scepticism but wouldn't mind more of it too. -- James Hall, Australian Financial , December 2004 One of the better finance books I've reviewed. -- Wealthcreator Magazine, January 2005 From the Back Cover Tread Your Own Path with The Barefoot Investor The Barefoot Investor, Scott Pape, shows how getting your financial act together can be downright sexy, allowing you to achieve things that mean the most to you - regardless of your income. Scott shows you how to manage your money to do the things you want: whether it's to quit the job you hate to make a career of what you love; buy a cool apartment; go backpacking around the world; or build a wealth portfolio for the future. By following the Barefoot Plan you can make your money work for you. The five Barefoot steps show you how to save it, invest it and let it do the hard work for you so you can tread your own path. At 26, Scott is a successful stockbroker and media commentator. He runs his own weekly finance radio show, chooses to drive a wreck and lives a full and rich life. His radio program has been described as finance for people who don't do finance. He makes money funky; your money can look after you once you learn how to look after it. "The Barefoot Investor is a step-by-step plan that requires very little willpower, zero interest in money and less than one hour a year to maintain. Isn't it about time you started living the life you want ?" Scott Pape. About the Author Scott Pape is 26 years of age, has worked for the Australian Stock Exchange and is now with a leading Melbourne stock broker.
