Alison Toplis : The Clothing Trade in Provincial England, 1800ndash;1850: Volume 19 (Perspectives in Economic and Social History) before purchasing it in order to gage whether or not it would be worth my time, and all praised The Clothing Trade in Provincial England, 1800ndash;1850: Volume 19 (Perspectives in Economic and Social History):

This detailed study is the first exploration of rural consumption of clothing in early nineteenth-century Britain. Drawing on evidence from a range of sources including newspapers, trade directories, court records, visual sources and surviving garments, Toplis investigates how the apparel of the mass of the British population was acquired.

'Toplis has produced a meticulously researched and detailed analysis, which both complements and adds to existing work on the history of retailing, clothing, and fashion.' Textile History 'a study that merits attention' Costume
